Note: The resignation of Paul Bourdin, Press Chief of the Federal Republic, was reported over the radio on 26 January 1950.

1. Bourdin submitted his letter of resignation to Chancellor Adenauer on the morning of 26 January 1950. In the letter he called attention to the painful situations he had found himself in during the recent flood of denials and explanations issued by the Chancellory, with apparent reference to statements made by government figures on the Saar question and on the nationalistic speech of Justice Minister Dehler in Hamburg. Bourdin stated in the letter that he could not continue in office unless the Chancellor would agree to let him be present at all conferences, meetings, and ceremonies which might later become controversial and require communiqués, explanations, or denials.
2. The strain on Bourdin during recent weeks had mounted steadily. Time and time again, various members of the coalition cabinet had made statements, issued memoranda, given interviews, and leaked confidential information, which, in his opinion, made the Press Office look ridiculous. The Saar memorandum of the Ministry for All-German Affairs, the Heuss speech on the Saar at Koblenz, Adenauer's subsequent statement to the United Press on the breaking off of trade negotiations in Paris, the Dehler speech and Adenauer's explanations of it, and all the communiqués, denials, explanations, and press conferences revolving around these mix-ups had exhausted Bourdin's patience.
